fells Her Impressions, Drawn From Experience, With the Brutes and the Jays, She Is Rather Too Fresh to Be Taken as a Fair Sample of the Phone Girl.

It took a long time and much trouble, but at hast the reporter did personally see and talk with a telephone girl. In what exchange she works, whether she is tall or short, light or dark, chews gum or lives in New York, the reporter will never divulge. That girl talked under a pledge of absolute secrecy as to her identity, and nothing can nor shall be said which will disclose anything more about her than the fact that she is an experienced operator. fact that she is an experienced operator and has worked in a number of the ex-changes. The meeting was brought about by a diplomatic third person, and the hello by a diplomatic third person, and the hello girl knew that she was going to be inter-chaved for the purposes of this story. That was a little unfortunate, because she was very shy of her information, to begin with. This wore off after a bit, however, and Miss Hello at last plainly shewed the satisfaction she felt in freeling her mind on the subject of the person at the other end of the wire. Then she talked with a great lead of vices arripathen, and refreshing

"Why, say," she said after her confidence had been won and she felt that her identity was absolutely secure, "If I only knew men as I meet them over the wire, I would believe that they are all brutes and some of them also jays! Why, say, they talk about our being fresh. Well, we ain't fresh long, if we ever are, because yon're called down too quick by the manager or his assistant if you get fresh over the wire. But there ain't any one got a bag of salt to sprinkle on the people who talk to us. It doesn't seem to make any difference how much a man uses the teleto all and have made it the most popular remedy known.

I was onto him, and I began stringing him just a little bit, you know, because the night manager was out of the office, and I had a chance to joily him a little. I could tell from his tone, even before he began to talk silly, that he was alone in the room, and pretty sood he began asking me about my nights off and if I wouldn't like some tickets to a roof garden. Suddenly his voice changed, and he began yelling like a cross bear: 'Hello, central! I say, you, central! Why don't you attend to business! The musician, who was indisposed at the time, heard the angry voice in the entry be low, and going to the head of the stairs asked what was the matter down there.

"Matter enough," cried the curpenter. "I want my money, and I can't get it."

"Don't get in a possion," said the musician soothingly. "Do me the favor to walk up stairs, if you please, and we will talk the business over."

"No. sir," replied the poor carpenter, "not a step will I stir up those stairs! You owe me $100 already, and if I came up goodness knows you'd most likely owe me $200 before I got down again!"—Youth's Com

Snow of Different Colors. The pure white color of snow, as we were all taught at school, is due to the fact that all the elementary colors of light are blend-ed together in the radiance thrown off from the innumerable crystals of which it is composed. But all snow is not white, and exactly why it is not is a puzzle to the mete-orologists. At the head of Holy Cross creek. Colorado, and at several places on Mount Shasta, California, blood red snow is found.

A pound of peas, for instance, can be purchased for 30 sons, but Zola pays often as high as 3 france for it. But all these large incomes are extended by that of Georges Ohnet. His "Forge Master" has been a gold mine for him. In 1885 it was estimated that the > Killing a Fashion At the garrison town of Maria-Theresia-nopel in Hungary the ladies have been get-ting into the habit of taking with them to the theater plush bags of various sizes and colors, in which they kept all their paraphermalia, such as opera glasses, sweets, handkerchiefs, smelling bottles, etc. The sight of a row of these receptacles daugling over the ledge of the dress circle and boxes was, to say the least, peculiar, while the incressint manipulation of these cornamental appendages by their fair owners had the effect of diverting the attention of the audience from the proceedings on the stage. To make matters worse the fashion "caught on" among the lower classes, and Biddy, strolling in the park at the side of her faithful trooper, was sure to have a plush bag swinging in her hand.

It came to pass in this wise. Last week, and for several nights in succession, the of ficers of the hussars quartered at M—bought up all the front seats in the boxes and dress circle and turned up at the performance carrying on their arms an ordinary forage bag somewhat less than the usual size, which they slung over the ledge in imitation of the ladies. The joke created no little amusement, and roars of laughter shook the house when the officers produced from their bags opera glasses, monocles, sweets, handkerchiefs and here and there a tobacco pouch or a snuffbox.
